

With our passion for Linux, we have been supporting exciting and innovative projects for well-known customers in the industrial environment every day for over 20 years. With us, you are always at the forefront of technology. Our employees are our success, so we value your personal contribution and always have an open ear for you. With us, you have a high degree of individual freedom and the opportunity for co-determination. Whether part-time, full-time or mobile office, we give you the freedom you need to balance your private and professional life and to realize your personal life model. We continue to grow and are looking for you to join our team as

System Architect (m/f/d)

Your tasks and responsibilities at Linutronix:

As a System Architect you will drive forward our system consisting of build system, realtime-hypervisor, Linux BSP and update. You will be watching the market requirements and technological innovations and, on this basis, define the technological roadmap and present it to management and teams.

You fit in well with us if you can bring the following to the job:

- ☐ University degree in the field of computer science or comparable training
- ☐ Several years of experience with the Linux operating system in the embedded field
- ☐ Experience in the field of security
- ☐ Problem-solving expertise
- ☐ Powerful communication and presentation skills
- ☐ Good command of German and English language

This is what we offer you:

- ☐ A respectful working atmosphere with an open corporate culture and flat hierarchies
- ☐ Exciting projects and customers
- ☐ Innovative technologies
- ☐ Large scope for creativity and personal responsibility
- ☐ Flexible working hours, mobile or hybrid office and part-time options
- ☐ Regular team events such as lunch cooking sessions
- ☐ Company pension allowance and capital-forming benefits
- ☐ Annual training budget
